Disability:

Unfortunately, most employers do not look upon pregnancy as a reason for disability. Therefore, we are unable to put you out on disability before your delivery unless there is a valid medical (see examples below) reason that we can document in your chart and send to your employer and your employer's FMLA insurance company.

Example valid medical reasons may include: hypertension, diabetes, premature labor, explained vaginal bleeding and other complications that may warrant restrictions of physical activity and bed rest.

Please see additional information on how to submit disability forms for completion and payment. Forms take 2-3 weeks to complete. Please submit forms in a timely manner for completion.
